

Model of Human Occupation

Archived List Serv Discussion

---

Woodwork Assessment

---

Tuesday, June 3, 2008

Hi

I am mailing to see if anybody has experience using MOHO or other assessments for assessing skill and risk in woodwork type situations?

I have not come up with anything from searches as yet so even a link to an article would be helpful.

Thanks

Jenny

Tuesday, June 3, 2008

If woodwork is attended to support clients with a work type role then the Worker Role Interview could be used and then the Assessment of Motor and Process Skills (AMPS) which would then be more specific regarding skills.

In terms of risk assessment - then it would be worthy contacting other vocational rehab projects to get an idea of what is considered (are you putting together a risk assessment in terms of COSHH materials (housekeeping) or from the point of view of assessing risk to determine clients having access to tools/machinery?)

Hope this helps.

Claire